

IAH BRITISH CHAPTER

JOHN DAY BURSARY

BACKGROUND

The British Chapter of the IAH has decided to setup a bursary to support students in undertaking hydrogeology-related fieldwork outside Great Britain as part of their postgraduate studies.

The bursary is named in honour of John Day, former Chief Hydrogeologist of the BGS and dedicated member of IAH, being a member of the organising committee of the first UK Congress in 1977, chair of the UK national committee when the Cambridge Congress was held in 1985 and Vice President of IAH from 1984 to 1993.

Open to postgraduate students studying at any university in Great Britain, the bursary reflects John Day's commitment to the need for the science of hydrogeology to serve society at home and internationally.

MORE INFORMATION

See the web page of the British Chapter of the IAH at <http://iah-british.org/news.php>

HOW TO APPLY/TERMS

The bursary will have a value of £500.

Applications for the bursary should comprise a brief (1500 words maximum) description of the proposed project, to include an outline of the overall project plan, location and nature of fieldwork to be carried out, and the objectives of the project.

Each university will be limited to one application, which should be submitted via the relevant course director.

The successful applicant must become a member of the IAH.

Applications should be submitted as a Word document to (mboland@slb.com) by the 1st March 2010. The project submissions will be reviewed by the committee of the IAH British Chapter and the successful applicant will be notified by 15th April 2010.

